£19,000 to £24,000 + Benefits

With a store within five minutes of 95% of the UK population and catalogues in seven out of ten homes, Argos is the UK's leading non-food retailer by quite some margin. Rapid growth in our business and stock range, plus internal promotions, means we now have a number of vacancies for Assistant Stock Controllers to help us build on our success. Enjoying plenty of scope for autonomy and creativity, you will assist the Merchandise Planner in every aspect of stock control, range budgeting, project management and team development. In addition, you will assume line responsibility for around half the Merchandise Planner's designated ranges, enabling you quickly to grow into this role.

An administrative background in stock is essential, or you must be familiar with demand processing and supply management. We're looking for people who can learn and advance fast, so intellect, organisational skills and business acumen are extremely important, alongside a commercial track record.
